

IDHMC UNDERGRADUATE INTERNSHIPS FOR 2013-2014

The IDHMC sponsors unpaid internships for undergraduate students in Communication, Computer Science, English, Education, History, Hispanic Studies, Modern Languages, Visualization, and other fields relevant to the digital humanities projects we support. Interns work up to ten hours a week on innovative research projects in a variety of disciplines. Most projects include technical training in CMS software (such as Drupal or WordPress), digital collection software (such as Omeka), text encoding using the oXygen XML editor, and server-side programming and development including PHP, HTML/CSS, and other tools. We also welcome students who can assist with web development, graphic design and publicity. Since training is part of the internship, we do not require prior experience – only willingness to learn new things and to think about humanities scholarship in new ways.

IDHMC internships provide valuable experience and training that can help you to reach a variety of academic and professional goals. If you are accepted, you may be able to obtain course credit for your internship. Check with your departmental advisor to find out what your options are.

To apply for an IDHMC internship, please submit the following materials to Dr. Maura Ives, IDHMC Associate Director (indhmc@tamu.edu):

- 1) a one page statement of interest. The statement should
 - identify the internship project(s) you would like to work on, explaining why you are interested in them
 - describe any relevant coursework or other related training or experience
 - indicate which semester(s) you would prefer to work.
- 2) a current resume or CV
- 3) one recommendation letter from a TAMU faculty member

DEADLINES: for Summer II: June 24, 2013; for Fall 2013: August 16.

Available projects (students are welcome to contact Dr. Ives for more information):

Advanced Research Consortium (ARC), eMop (early modern OCR), the Cervantes Project, Digital Donne, and the Poetess Archive (faculty sponsor: Laura Mandell, English)

Emerson Society Website, American Transcendentalist Website, 19th Century Concord (faculty sponsor: Amy Earhart, English)

Network for New Media, Religion and Digital Culture Studies (Heidi Campbell, Communication)

Texas Jewish Historical Society Archive (faculty sponsor: Katherine Weimer, TAMU Libraries)

THATCamp@TAMU (faculty sponsor: Maura Ives)